

The Application

BY GINA MOXLEY

5-16 OCT
THE NEW THEATRE

The Application is a documentary following Gina Moxley and Luca Truffarelli making an application about freelance theatre artists experiences of endlessly making applications and precious little work during lockdown. With venues closed artists' were orphaned, without an income, a community or a home. Everyone was applying for everything—to keep a log in the grate, the wolf from the door. We invited six artists to film their response to making bloody applications: the emotional investment, the unrealised plans, the hope, the absolute despair. Their responses are extraordinarily tender, surprisingly hopeful, and hilarious. This a portrait of what it takes to make a thing, to stay alive—the stuff we never see.

Supported by Dublin Theatre Festival Futures programme.

In association with Pan Pan.

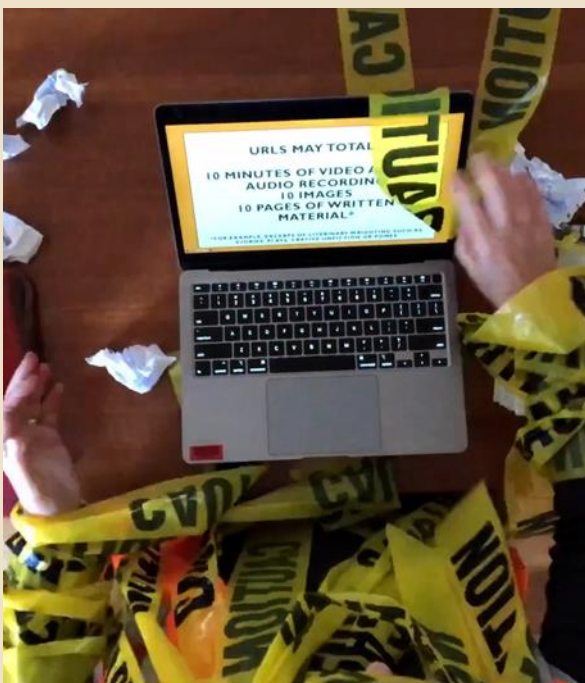

Tickets are sold using pod seating of predetermined sizes.

DIRECTOR NOTE

Like everyone else in the Arts most of my lockdown was spent trying to forge something from ashes. The most hopeful thing you could do was to imagine making something, with someone, somewhere at some stage. It was as woolly as that. But even imagining in that dystopian darkness involved making applications. Lots of applications. It felt like that's what our work had become. I had a farcical image of everyone dementedly working on applications in their own homes. So, I roped in Luca Truffarelli and Emma Coen and applied to DTF's Futures initiative and got the money to actually make it happen.
