

ANU PRODUCTIONS AND LANDMARK PRODUCTIONS

THE BOOK OF NAMES

4–23 OCT

THE PUMPHOUSE, DUBLIN PORT

In days of upheaval a new resilience has taken hold. Two of Ireland's leading theatre companies collaborate for the first time, to present a hugely ambitious co-production that plots a singular path through one of the most secretive, contentious and turbulent times in Irish history.

Drawing on two 100-year old books—a unique historical ledger which documents in careful detail the names, ages and roles of every employee in Dublin Port, and an intelligence dossier containing names and photographs of potential targets—The Book of Names tells a tale of espionage, high stakes and a deadly game of historical doublethink.

Warnings: Contains loud noises, violence, adult themes and references to death.

FOREWORD

Since 2012 the Dublin Port Company (DPC) has been involved in a very ambitious programme of redevelopment and improving capacity. Central to that redevelopment is the idea of Port City Integration and using the 300 year old Port Archive to tell the story of the Port. In 2015 we opened the Diving Bell, Dublin's smallest museum and in 2021 we are launching the Pumphouse Heritage Zone, a 2 acre civic space. When we thought of who we would like to launch this new space we felt ANU Productions were the only theatre company who could bring this area to life and create a show to tell of the events of the Irish Wars of 1919–23 in Dublin Port and City.

– Lar Joye, Port Heritage Director
at Dublin Port Company
